

2006 DAMARIS RESERVE CHARDONNAY

61% SANGIACOMO VINEYARDS - CARNEROS
39% FLOCCHINI VINEYARDS - SONOMA COAST

Our 2006 Damaris utilizes two distinctive appellations, the Carneros district of Sonoma and the Sonoma Coast appellation from an area on Lakeville Highway in Petaluma. There are several unique selections of clonal material grown in these two vineyards. The Sangiacomo Vineyards has Wente and Catarina. Flocchini has Wente and Robert Young. Each individual block of grapes was hand-harvested and barrel fermented separately using indigenous yeasts and underwent complete malo-lactic fermentation. After aging for twelve months the various lots of these wines were tasted and specific barrels were selected for the final blend which was racked to tank for fining with isinglass, a traditional clarifying agent. The wine was bottled without filtration after several months of natural settling in the first quarter of 2008.

The wine's richness and concentration comes from well-controlled vineyard yields of no more than 3.5 tons/acre. A balanced acidity carries over into a long finish that lingers, evoking citrus oil and creaminess. The elegant palate feel is heightened by the well-integrated use of French oak barrels, approximately 40% of which were new.
